TO PROBE INTO VICE
OF HIS NATIVE CITY

CHAIRMAN OF STATE, VICE COMMISSION CLAIMS JANESVILLE HIS BIRTHPLACE.

TO BE HERE TWO DAYS

Has Verified Reports of Actual Conditions Existing in This City and Will Hold Public Hearing Later.

Senator Howard Teasdale of Sparta, chairman of the legislative committee investigating vice conditions in Wisconsin, arrived in Janesville at three o'clock this afternoon, to begin a probe into the vice situation of his native city. Few Janesville residents are cognizant of the fact that Mr. Teasdale was born in Janesville, the date of his birth being August 9, 1855.

It is stated that Senator Teasdale will spend two days in this city, making a preliminary survey of the ground and outlining his plans for a public hearing, which will be held here before the full committee. He is said to have verified reports of conditions in this city, as well as of Oshkosh and Milwaukee, where hearings will also be held in the near future.

Mr. Teasdale, who is a La Follette republican, was elected to the state senate in 1910. During the 1911 session he vigorously opposed the teachers' pension law and certain portions of the income tax law. He was active in all legislation tending to diminish the evils of the liquor traffic and in the last session was largely instrumental in securing the vice investigation of the state in which he has been engaged intensively since the adjournment last spring.

He is recognized as one of the leaders in the senate. In addition to his work on liquor and vice problems he has taken an active part in affairs relating to the state, charitable, and social institutions.

He represents the thirty-first senatorial district, composed of Jackson, Vernon and Monroe counties.

DRY MAJORITY AT FREEPORT IN DOUBT

Sucker City Option Election Forces Many Questions of Protest Into Light.

Freeport, Ill., April 11.—Complications have arisen that have halted for the time being the work of the town board that has been endeavoring to secure the recent local option election. In the meantime Attorney Robert P. Eckert is looking up the law, which he contends offers a solution of the quandary in which the canvassing board finds itself.

In the sixth precinct the judges and clerks of election failed to make a return of the official vote on the wet and dry proposition. In this precinct the vote on dry, 496, and wet, 284. There is no doubt that the figures are substantially correct. However, in making out their tally sheets, to be delivered to the board, the officials in that precinct neglected to report on the local option question. As the precinct was dry by a substantial majority, and the total dry majority only 130, the elimination of this precinct leaves the wet vote with a majority of 84, which is the margin the board stands at present.

The board has no way of canvassing the vote in this precinct. Attorney Eckert maintains that the law provides for such a contingency, and that the judges and clerks can be called to complete their records. It is said that the judges claim they were furnished no tally sheet for this local option question, and that they recorded their figures on a sample ballot, the only thing that was handed out to the voters.

In case the board is not willing to allow it, the only recourse is to take the matter into county court for a recount, as the county judge alone has power to go over the ballots.

The drys are confident that if the ballots are recounted, if the precinct board as their attorney thinks possible, there is no question about the dry vote being allowed to stand.

Contest Seems Unavoidable.

Should the recount county court, it is the final outcome, reveal a majority for the wets, the dry forces will contest the vote. They claim that many voted who were not qualified, and the statement is made that the drys have affidavits that will turn the tables should the final canvass show an apparent wet victory.

The wets are also equally confident that their vote is in the majority, and are carefully canvassing, and should the contrary be found true, they will also contest. They make the claim that not a few girls under 21 years of age voted, they being under the impression that 18 was the legal age.

PRESIDENT AND PARTY ARE ENJOYING LIFE AT RESORT

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 11.—A bright sunshine and in a glorious temperature greeted President Wilson when he went golfing today. He arose before any of the other guests at the hotel where he is stopping and with Dr. Cary Grayson, his aide, he went to the golf course. Mr. McAdoo joined the president's party today. His fiancée, Miss Eleanor Wilson, was here.

TEN VOTES WAS MAJORITY IN SCHOOL HEAD ELECTION

Madison, Wis., April 11.—Miss Jennie Laws of Mezmorah, former superintendent of schools for the western district of Dane county, was elected for teacher of the county board of education for that district by Julius Wendt, by only ten votes, according to a canvass of the election returns just completed.

Wet Forces Will Protest the Student Vote if Drys Press Charges Against License Contingent.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., April 11.—The effort of the Madison dry league to contest the victory of the wets in this city last Tuesday, who prevailed by 73 majority, will be pressed lead to retaliatory action, but the dry advocates. The saloon men threaten to start a suit for illegal voting, alleging that many university students under age were sworn in and voted. The student wards returned an overwhelming dry majority.

The dry league has retained Gilbert & Eila to take charge of the legal end of its investigation, and will, it is understood, make its attack on the number of votes sworn in by the saloon men.

Mayor John B. Helm attributes his defeat for re-election to the students. He will not be a party, however, to any action that may be brought to test the right of students to vote in Madison.

Gaden Township in Delta County Issues Bonds for Purchase of Road and Running Stock.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Marquette, Wis., April 11.—It remained for Gaden township of Delta county, Michigan, to take the advanced step in government ownership of railroads. By a vote to issue bonds for the purchase of the logging road of the Van Harbor Land and Lumber company, which connected the village of Gaden with Cook Harbor, a station on the Soo line, it takes this advanced step. It was the only railroad in the township and was about to be torn up by the lumber company which had ended its usefulness. Rather than lose it the township voted for its purchase.

Woman Throws Tantrums When Arraigned Before London Magistrate, Who Adjourns Her Case.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Eng., April 11.—May Stewart, the militant suffragette, who with a cleaver tried to demolish a cake of valuable porcelain in the British museum on April 9th, created such a disturbance when charged today that the police magistrate was compelled to adjourn the trial.

When the bailiff opened the case again, Miss Stewart shouted, "I have not come here to listen to you today." The magistrate remonstrated with the prisoner. She declared she would resist as long as Mrs. Pankhurst was being tortured under the Cat and Mouse act. "The devilish work originated by McKenna, the home secretary," then Miss Stewart threw a ball of paper at the magistrate, whereupon he had the hearing postponed.

"May Stewart" later in the day was identified as Catherine Wilson, who was arrested on March 15, 1913, in the lobby of the theatre, came dressed in man's attire and carrying a dog whip. She was sentenced at that time to six weeks' hard labor.

A few hours after her first appearance, Miss Stewart re-entered the prisoner's enclosure with two policemen holding her arms. Several other police were in reserve in the court. She created another uproarious scene, but the magistrate was able to make presentation of the formal evidence and she was then committed for trial without bail.

TESTIMONY CLOSED

Complete Evidence in Injunction Suit Against Dairy and Food Commissioner Emery.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., April 11.—After almost three weeks of testimony, the trial of the injunction suit of the Corn Products Refining company against State Dairy and Food Commissioner J. C. Emery, was concluded Friday afternoon. The company seeks to restrain the state department from enforcing a law requiring the statement on syrup labels of the proportion of corn syrup, which Emery insisted that so-called corn syrup, containing 35 per cent of glucose and 15 of corn syrup, should be labeled as such. The company's highest official and numerous expert witnesses took the stand in opposition to the state's efforts. It will take about a month to transcribe the testimony, after which the attorneys, H. E. Fairchild of Green Bay, for the company, and John M. Olin for the dairy and food department, will make their arguments before Federal Judge A. L. Sanborn.

Madrid Government May Ask United States to Assist in Efforts to Transport Refugees to Native Land.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, April 11.—Another crisis in the Mexican situation, at this time over the arrest and detention of the American marines at Tampico, has been passed over with the prompt return of the men and the apology by Huerta's commander, who promised punishment for any of his officers found guilty of any offense.

Reports to Wilson.

Official reports of the arrest and subsequent release of American marines at Tampico were received today by Secretary Daniels, who at once dispatched the word to President Wilson at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

Rear Admiral Mayo reported that after the marines were released upon his demand he gave the Huerta commander twenty-four hours to salute the American colors as an apology. Last night no official report had been received that the Huerta commander had complied with his demand, but Secretary Daniels interpreted the press dispatches as saying the commander had apologized as meaning that the Huerta commander had complied with Mayo's demand.

Carranza at Chihuahua.

General Carranza, with a military staff, members of his cabinet and a large number of clerks, left here for Chihuahua, a new provincial capital today. A pilot train with guard of four hundred men left here last night to clear the way for the chief of the revolutionists. Residences and executive offices are awaiting him at Chihuahua, and with this official on the scene there will be a slight interruption of the workings of the new provincial government.

Gladstone and Adventuring

Gladstone once defined adventuring as the marvelous power of constant reiteration.

That happy phrase offers an explanation of the wonderful power of the newspaper as a business-builder. The power of reiteration continued from day to day is possessed by the newspaper alone among advertising media.

The newspaper enters the home as a friend every day. It is read by every member of the family. It is possible for a business to live its name and its appeal before the people all the time.

They grow to know it. Whenever they have a want to be supplied they turn to the newspaper which they have known through newspaper advertising as naturally as they would turn to an old friend.

The Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York, wants to help general advertising by using newspaper advertising to better advantage. Correspondence is solicited.

GOVERNORS TO MEET AT BADGER CAPITAL

Seventh Annual Meeting Will Be Held in Madison During Week of June 9.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., April 11.—Secretary Miles C. Riley today announced that the seventh annual meeting of the governors conference will be held in the city of Madison, Wisconsin, commencing Tuesday, June 9. Sessions for the first four days will be held in Wisconsin's new state capital building in the city of Madison, after which an adjournment will be taken to the city of Milwaukee for a one day session.

Already twenty-five governors have signified their intention of being present. A number of former governors, members of the governors' conference, will also be in attendance.

Members of the president's cabinet and other persons prominent in public life have been invited to the conference. A date earlier than usual was selected because of the primaries and general elections to be held in many states this fall.

The meeting will be held in Madison on the invitation of Governor Francis E. McGovern of Wisconsin, who has been chairman of the executive committee of the conference for the past three years. The other two members of the executive committee are Governor Emmet O'Neal of Alabama and Governor Elias M. Ammons of Colorado.

Madison is the first city in the central portion of the United States to be honored by a meeting of the governors' conference. All other meetings have been held in the east, south and west.

PICKPOCKET PROBE

Departments in Large Cities of Country Are Notified That New York City Must Capture Culprits.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, April 11.—The police of all the large cities in the country were asked today to help rid New York of pickpockets. The local authorities sent photographs and lists of all the pickpockets on record in the United States.

The crusade was launched on account of the systematic way in which members of the fraternity have of escaping punishment. In a conference today it was decided the best way to stop this was to perfect the rogues' gallery record and take advantage of a decision of the supreme court which held that the police have a sworn testimony of the complainant, even though the complainant fails to appear in court. This would frustrate the favorite scheme of pickpockets who send friends to buy off the complaining witness.

His death is a great shock to his family and friends as he was in his usual good health until yesterday, when he complained of not feeling well. He will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends at Edgerton where he has made his home for more than forty years. Besides his wife he leaves two daughters and four sons. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

THOMAS' SKEPTICISM IS STORY IN GERMAN

REV. T. C. THORSON TO PREACH EASTER SERMON AT DU-RAND, ILL.

NO SERVICE IN LOCAL

Norwegian Church Sunday Text Is Worked Out in Very Capable Manner.

The Skepticism of Thomas—Text, John 20:24-29.

The Skepticism of Thomas as to the resurrection of Jesus was more pronounced than that of the other disciples. At first the other disciples denied the report of the resurrection of Jesus, but upon the appearance of Christ in their midst their unbelief vanished as mist before the sun. Now Thomas was not present the first time Christ revealed himself to the disciples, and when the first Easter message burst upon his ears he answered unmoved, "except I shall see upon his hand the print of the nail and put my finger into the print of the nail and thrust my hand into his side I will not believe." A week passed. That was a week of spiritual agony such as only those may know who have been afflicted with doubt concerning the most sacred truths—such as the divine origin of the scriptures, the divinity of our Lord, or a life after death.

There are many today who, like Thomas, ask for proof that Jesus rose from the dead. Then there are others who do not question the testimony of the disciples, but straightway believe. That the resurrection of the dead seems incredible is true. And a skeptical mind and it augments the mystery. The skeptical mind calls for an understanding sympathy, not a thoughtless censure. For the man who doubts the resurrection is shrouded in a spiritual darkness that grows denser as life's day draws to its close.

The resurrection of the dead being a question of paramount importance, and without Christ so uncertain, who is he to censure the man who here seeks unflinching evidence and Christ gave him the proof that he sought, with a loving reproach, it is true.

Let us consider the skepticism of Thomas (1), in the light of nature; (2) in the light of scripture; (3) let us search nature for evidence for a life after death. Meanwhile let us forget that Christ rose from the dead.

We observe first, that there is in the human heart a desire to live, that penetrates beyond death and the grave. The thought that death may end all effects us like a chilling wind on a summer day. That the desire to live on after death may be a valid argument for the immortality of the soul is not improbable, for if not true that for every want in our life there is a corresponding means of satisfaction? For hunger there is food, for thirst there is drink, for weariness there is rest. Would God have placed in the human heart a desire for eternal life and fail to provide for its satisfaction? But there are many men who care not to live, and unto such our argument carries no weight. Their attitude is that argument known as consensus gentium. Belief in immortality of some form is a part of the religious creed of all people, irrespective of race, color, or state of culture. Now, whatever mankind has believed at all times and in all places deserves a thoughtful consideration. Yet we are not unmindful of the fact that at one time it was quite universally believed that the earth stood still. This is nearly a universal mistake. Perhaps the belief in immortality is another universal mistake.

Who has not noticed the caterpillar as it crept slowly through the dust? The caterpillar finds its grave in the chrysalis, but from this grave occurs the resurrection of the butterfly. What a wonderful transformation from the caterpillar in the dust to the butterfly, spreading its beautiful wings upon the summer breeze! How symbolic you say, of the human resurrection. But how rudely it does shatter this analogy if you crush the caterpillar.

If a man dies shall he live again? Who shall answer? During the thousands of years that the earth has been the habitation of man how staggering the number of those who have entered that country from whose bourne no traveler returns. No one has retraced his steps from the valley of the shadow of death.

Think I hear some one say, "It does not seem reasonable that God should have made man so wonderful, only to perish with the flowers." May I ask, wherein does the superior excellency of man appear in the flowers, to warrant the belief that man should survive the body more than the flower should survive the petals? Consider the flowers! Is the structure of your body more exquisite, your growth more wonderful than that of the flowers? Are you faithful in your calling as the flower that never neglects to unfold its beauty and spread its exhilarating perfume, whether it be in the king's garden or in the loneliest wood? Unobserved and unappreciated, save by its maker? What has man done to deserve immortality more than the flower? The flower obeys the laws of its being, man performs the duties of his calling; more than that he cannot do.

What shall we say, is a man but the creature of a day? Men who have studied insect life say that some insects live but a day. Take one of these insects, put it under the microscope, and you instantly observe how wonderfully complex the organism! Who knows if God is so astonishingly frugal with less complex forms of life, may He not be as free handed with the lives of men?

May not some one ask, has not science established the immortality of the soul beyond a reasonable doubt? Admitting that it has proved the immortality of the soul, the next question must be, what is the quality of that immortality? Is the immortality that science proves, human existence infinitely drawn out, or human existence raised to a higher power? Science may prove that the soul survives death, but beyond that its lips must ever remain sealed.

A reflection upon the arguments presented show that while nature may give promise of immortality, there is no proof forthcoming. Despite the wonderful achievements of man in laying bare the secrets of nature, he has not succeeded in wrenching from the lips of nature one promise of the immortality of the soul. Who will wonder that a man so skeptical as Thomas should doubt the resurrection of Christ? And as we pass over to consider the proofs of the resurrection of Christ let us thank God who has begotten us into a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

The text indicates two lines of evidence for the resurrection of Christ, the external and the internal. Let us take the external first—"Because thou has seen me thou hast believed." Consider the testimony of the witnesses. He reports not what some one told him but what he saw and heard. He was present and heard Thomas lay down the rules according to which he would test the credibility of their report. And just as was present when Jesus appeared to Thomas and heard him exclaim "My Lord and my God." The testimony of John would be accepted in any court of law.

Next consider the character of Thomas. If ever a man lived who feared that he would be deluded it was Thomas. Without any valid reason he rejected the testimony of the women who had seen Jesus not only that but he rejected the unanimous testimony of the ten disciples to the resurrection.

What valid reason did Thomas have to throw out the testimony of the disciples? Did he doubt their mean that even though the women and the ten disciples had been deceived by their senses to the extent that they thought they had seen Christ, he alone would prove immune to these hallucinations? And just so. And you exclaim what superb self-confidence. Truly if Thomas had one-tenth of the confidence in his brothers' ability to observe correctly that he had in his own, he would have had no difficulty in accepting the report of the disciples.

Yet, consider when Christ did appear Thomas might have refused to believe, but he straightway accepted Christ and if his unbelief was great, yet greater was his faith. He was inclined as to the resurrection of Christ, will it not help you to remember that you had such a hard headed man on the scene who represented your doubts and difficulties and should not his confession carry much weight?

Let us next consider the motives in promulgating the doctrine of the resurrection of Christ if it were not true. What might the disciples gain thereby? The hatred of the Jews, poverty, suffering, and at last the martyr's death. Do you suppose that falsehood and deception could give courage and power to enable them men through years of suffering and persecution to labor for the well-being, even of their enemies, conscious of their fraud, with no reward but a martyr's death? If that is possible, then falsehood is a more powerful agent than truth, and if that is so, then must we call falsehood truth and truth falsehood. But we cannot rest our case here; we are driven on, for if falsehood is mightier than truth, how shall we characterize this story which such a thing is possible? Nay, what must we think of God who will permit such a thing to pass? One thing is certain—he who persists in this view and reasons logically must shortly come to utter grief and despair of existence in general.

Imagine some one saying, "I do not doubt the sincerity of the disciples; they believed in the resurrection of Christ, only they were deceived." Let us try to be true for the sake of argument, what follows? How does such a view reflect upon the reasoning power of man, and upon his ability to disentangle truth from error, if even the most sincere and devoted of Galilee have unintentionally deceived the most educated portion of mankind for nineteen hundred years? If that is true we must ever despair of being able to ascertain the truth, and surely if Renan and Strauss had considered the matter carefully would they not have been modest enough, think you, to refrain from such a superhuman task as dislodging the world about the resurrection of Christ.

It was by external evidence that Thomas believed in the resurrection of Christ. Now let us notice that though Christ granted the proof, Thomas sought, and although he recognized such external evidence of approach, Christ reproaches him for his unbelief. And should anyone refuse to believe in the resurrection of Christ until verified by external proof, let him remember that no reasoning process or external evidence, however singular and convincing, is sufficient to produce a saving faith in Christ. To be sure you may by reasoning arrive at an absolute certainty of the resurrection of Christ as an historical fact, but that will not serve you any more than would your belief in the resurrection of the widow's son at Nain, which is also an historical fact.

If Thomas had not gone any further in his belief in the resurrection than the external evidence carried him, the resurrection would have only had an historical significance. Notice how Thomas forgot to apply his test when opportunity presented. Without any verification he exclaims, "My Lord and my God!" How could Thomas call the man who stood before him "Lord" if he had not seen evidence Christ was but a man. You say, "a man who arose from the dead must surely be a God-man." Even so, what proof had Thomas that the God-man who had died would not die again? So how could he consistently call him God? No, let us be frank to admit there is not a question of the evidence of senses, but the evidence of the heart.

EAGER TO WORK.

Health Regained by Right Food.

The average healthy man or woman is usually eager to be busy at some useful task or employment. But let dyspepsia or indigestion get hold of one, and all endeavor becomes a burden.

"A year ago, after recovering from an operation," writes a Michigan lady, "my stomach and nerves began to give me much trouble."

"At times my appetite was voracious but when indigestion followed. Other times I had no appetite whatever. The food I took did not nourish me and I grew weaker than ever."

"I lost interest in everything and wanted to be alone. I had always had good nerves, but now the merest trifle would upset me and bring on a violent headache. Walking across the room was an effort and prescribed exercise was out of the question."

"I had seen Grape-Nuts advertised, but did not believe what I read, at the time. At last, when it seemed as if I were literally starving, I began to eat Grape-Nuts."

"I had not been able to work for a year, but now after two months on Grape-Nuts I am eager to be at work again. My stomach gives me no trouble now, my nerves are steady as ever, and interest in life and ambition have come back with the return to health."

idence of the Holy Spirit. For that reason, Christ is the Son of God, is not revealed to us by flesh and blood, but by God. And no one will call Jesus Lord but by the Holy Spirit.

Consider the internal evidence—"Blessed are they who have not seen and yet have believed." It is a patent fact that there are christian men and women unschooled in the laws of evidence, who are not capable of passing upon the validity of an historical argument, who yet believe as implicitly in the resurrection of Jesus, as a man as though they had seen and handled Christ. How can it be?

It is the power of the resurrection operative through faith in Christ. It is the consciousness of transition from death to life, from darkness to light, from the kingdom of Satan to the kingdom of God. Go and ask a man, how do you know that you live? He will answer, I am conscious of living. And just as the natural life bears witness to its temporal existence, so our spiritual life bears witness to its eternal existence. The eternal life begins here on earth with regeneration. Thus it is true that a christian lives a double life, for while he lives his life in time he lives his life eternal. Truly the christian knows whereof he speaks when he says "I am as sure that I will live again as I am that I live today."

Should we have doubts concerning the resurrection of Christ then let us of Thomas how he was brought to believe in Christ. Mark, then, that though Thomas did not believe the report of disciples he did not ridicule them, but retained an open mind toward the resurrection of Christ. Go to church, hear the Word preached, for it is through the Word that Christ will reveal himself to your heart. Should a long time pass before Christ reveals himself to you, remember that Thomas had to wait eight days. While you wait anxiously, let me ask you, are you sure that it is your head and not your heart that is at fault? Note, Thomas did not say I cannot believe, he said I will not believe. Oh! that men would learn that it is not because they cannot believe that they live without God and hope in the world, but because they will not believe.

There are others who never doubt the facts of the resurrection. They know that Christ is risen from the dead and yet they never experienced the power of the resurrection. There is a difference of infinite extent between having a knowledge of a fact and the experience of the power of that fact. When you stand upon the shore and watch the billows come rolling in from the harbor you have a knowledge of the wind and the sea, but until you get out on the deep and battle with the billows and feel the wind you experience the power of the sea. Now for the application of the illustration. Either your belief in the resurrection of Christ is based on historical knowledge or your belief is based on the experience of the power of the resurrection.

If your belief in the resurrection of Christ has not wrought in you a new life, a resurrection from your life of sin, you are still spiritually dead. Then is your belief in Christ not the testimony of a dead faith? But if your belief in the resurrection, however weak that faith may be, has quickened a desire to die unto sin, that the life of Christ may the more abound in you, then truly you are risen with Christ. Then are you numbered among those of whom it is said that like as Christ was raised up from the day by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in the newness of life. Then is your faith greater than that of Thomas, for Jesus said, "Because thou hast

YOUR attention is respectfully called to an important point not generally known, that a laxative should have a tonic element to successfully meet constipation.

Mr. John B. Capers, of 810 Pecan St., Fort Worth, Texas, had a significant experience in this particular. He was afflicted with a severe case of constipation and bowel trouble. He spent a good deal of money in trying to find a remedy. To his astonishment, Peruna very quickly relieved him of his bad symptoms.

This happened a number of years ago. Since then, Mr. Capers states that he has had similar attacks of trouble, the prominent symptom of which is constipation, and has at once taken a prompt and efficient relief from Peruna. He says: "Up to the time I started using your Peruna I could drink castor oil like water. It did no good. As for salts, they were of no use. Physics of all kinds and classes were used, but we had to call on the poison syringe for help." Peruna was able to correct this condition completely in Mr. Capers' case, and there is every reason to believe that it was the tonic qualities of Peruna, added to the laxative qualities, that procured this very desirable result.

seen me, Thomas, thou has believed." Blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed.

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 4—WHAT IS THRIFT?

"Economy no more means saving money than it means spending money; it means administration of a house; its stewardship; spending or saving whether money or time, or anything else, to the best possible advantage."—Ruskin.

There seems to be a mistaken idea abroad as to just what is meant by the word thrift. It means more than the average person thinks it does.

When in these talks we speak of saving money, we do not for an instant want any reader to think that we advise miserliness—grubbing, cheese-paring, squeezing and saving every possible cent, at the expense of self-respect, comfort and health.

At times, spending, instead of saving, may be the wisest course. Thrift at once earns and saves, with a view to wholesome and profitable expenditure at a fitting time.

But the actual accumulation of money is the outward and visible sign that a man is really thrifty, and, although thrift means more than just saving, to a large extent saving is the measure of a man's progress.

Money isn't everything. It can't always buy health and happiness, but if by your present thrift you are able to get into comfortable circumstances and banish the worry of debt, will you not be doing something that will surely make for health and happiness?

While saving alone is not thrift, it is an indispensable part of it. However, we do not wish to encourage anyone to be stingy. Between saving money sensibly and being a genuine "tightwad" there is a vast difference.

Thrift is more than prudence, which is merely good judgment and foresight in the practical affairs of life. It is more than economy, which is a disposition to save. It is more than frugality which is prudent economy in the care of money or goods.

Parsimony is excessive and unreasonable saving for the sake of saving. Miserliness denies one's self and others the comforts and even the necessities of life for the mere pleasure of hoarding.

Industry earns, economy manages, prudence plans, frugality saves; but thrift earns, plans, manages and saves.

As W. H. Kniffin, Jr., puts it in his book, "The Savings Bank and Its Practical Work": "The thrift habit teaches a man to earn largely, that he may save wisely, so as to be able to spend advantageously in the time of need or opportunity, when the need will be greater or the opportunity better than that of the present."

Lord Roseberry, the famous British statesman, said: "Whatever thrift is, it is not avarice. Avarice is not generous; and after all, it is the thrifty people who are generous. All true generosity can only proceed from thrift, because it is not generosity to give money which does not belong to you, as is the case of the unthrifty. And I venture to say that all the great philanthropists, all the great financial benefactors of their species of whom we have any record, the most generous of all must have been thrifty men."

WEATHER FORECAST.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

People who have forgotten how to play and whose principal enjoyment is found in chasing the nimble dollar, away down to the edge of time, are at a loss to understand how men and women, on the shady side of life, are content to fool away a month or two on a vacation, and the question is often asked: "How do you manage to put in your time?"

The story of a day in southwestern Florida at an obscure country resort, where a little handful of guests assemble, year after year, may throw a little light on the subject of how to loaf and rest scientifically, and while it will not enthrall the "stay at home" who are planning a brief rest, before they go hence, after passing the eightieth milestone, it may cause some of them to regret that they were not cast in a different mould.

The day commences the night before, for out in an orange tree, back of the house a mocking bird is patiently brooding over a nest, while on a branch near by, her faithful mate at intervals through the long, silent watches, warbles the first verse of a new song, and the strains of melody float in through the window to cheer the light sleeper.

This land of sunshine and climate is filled with these noted songsters and nothing in the way of music is too difficult for them to imitate. A little colored boy was playing an old mouth-organ the other day, and the long intake and exhaust produced a discord that could scarcely be called a tune. Presently another mouth-organ was heard from up in a tree, nearby, where a mocking bird had been an interested spectator, and the much surprised boy stopped to listen. (The bird was the best of the two.)

The day proper begins at four o'clock in the morning, for long before the first streak of daylight a big red rooster, who lodges in a tree close to the house, commences to wake up, and after one or two attempts declares himself in a voice like a fog horn, and soon an answering chorus takes up the refrain and the neighborhood echoes with old-fashioned farm melody.

Between the birds, wild with glee, and the roosters playing a close second, the day is ushered in, and by six o'clock you are ready to turn out for you have been in bed since 8:30, undisturbed by either bridge or the tango, for the simple life of the west coast resorters is a stranger to Palm Beach and the east coast resorts.

The first course of a simple 6:30 breakfast is a two pound grape fruit fresh from the garden back of the house, different in richness and flavor from anything found in the north, because it has hung on the tree all winter and is dead ripe. Oranges and grape fruit are at their best just now in the south, on this account.

If you have had good success in fishing, the day before, a platter of fresh salt water fish, plenty of eggs, and the noted southern hot biscuit, with a good cup of coffee, start you out in good shape for the day, and by seven o'clock you are ready for business.

The bay in front of the house is dotted with wooded islands, and if the day is fine—and every day is fine in this land of perpetual sunshine—and you enjoy fishing, you start out for a three mile troll with a couple of light rods and good-sized reels, carrying three hundred feet of line.

Your boatman takes you down along the shore of "Red-fish" bank where you wait in vain for a strike from one of these noted salt water fish, then across to "Rovalin Alley" and along the mangrove shore of a wooded island.

Your wife sits in the stern of the boat fishing, with more or less indifference, until presently her real commences to sing, and back one hundred feet a big fish comes out of the water and shakes himself to throw the hook, but in vain, and the fight is on.

You pull for water to give him plenty of sea room, and, for fifteen minutes he furnishes lively entertainment. After many vicious runs and exhausting most of your line, he commences to weaken, and when you roll him in he floats along side the boat and you lift him in to find that you have captured a twenty-three pound fish, much the shape of a small-mouthed black bass and just as gamer.

The trip takes you around among the islands and down through Alligator Pass where occasionally may be seen an alligator sunning himself on the bank, then home past Sheephead Point. Many these fishing grounds were named by F. J. Bailey of Janesville, who has spent many winters fishing in these waters.

The next morning Mr. George Chahorn of New York, who has been a guest at Cleveland for many winters, and who kills more quail than any man in Florida, invites his friends for a day's black bass fishing up in the headwaters of Shell Creek, fifteen miles away, and with a couple of row-boats in tow, you climb into his launch and are off for the day, with a picnic dinner and a fish fry in sight.

Shell Creek has its rise in a big spruce swamp, twenty-five miles inland. It winds its way like a serpent through banks covered with tropical plants and trees, and these banks, well up towards its source, are composed of a great variety of shells, which geologists claim have been forming for 100,000 years. The National Museum at Washington has a large collection of these shells on exhibition, as well as some large-mouth black bass weighing twenty pounds, caught in these waters. Our party, however, is satisfied with smaller fry, and after a few hours' rare sport with rod and reel, assembles around a campfire for an appetizing dinner in the woods.

The run home is made in the early evening, and after supper the veranda overlooking the bay is occupied for an hour with a tired but jolly party of sons and daughters of toil.

An old gentleman from the middle South was present, the other evening, and related some of his experiences. He was a typical southerner and lived in a section where the colored brother was largely in evidence.

The race is very religious, and many of them are hard-shelled Baptists; an illiterate sect who believe in an inspiration of the bible to such an extent that their preachers never select a text until they stand before the congregation, and then open the book and talk on the first verse that catches the eye, depending on the Lord to supply the words.

He said he attended one of these meetings a time ago when an old colored preacher occupied the pulpit. After the opening exercises, he opened the bible, laid it on the pulpit, adjusted his glasses, and commenced to read in faltering voice, from one of the psalms of David, and this is what he read:

"And dey praise de Lawd wid de harp and psaltry." The last word bothered him and he finally spelled it out to suit himself, and pronounced it Pesaltree. Then he commenced to exhort and said:

"My brudders and sisters. You all know dat de harp is a musical instrument wid a thousand strings, and ebery string was used to praise de Lawd." After extolling the harp at some length, he continued:

"But de Pesaltree, I don't know so much about. I reckon it must a been a good kind of tree or it wouldn't have said anything about it. You know we have all kinds of fruit trees now and I reckon the Pesaltree was an apple tree loaded wid big red apples. Let us pray!"

Not a very exciting life, and may seem a bit monotonous, yet all over the South are old men and women who seem to enjoy this simple existence. And possibly they may take as much out of life as they would had they kept their noses at the grindstone until the last revolution of the wheel.

SIGNS OF GENERAL REVOLT
THROUGHOUT THE STATE SHOWN AT RECENT ELECTION.

REFUSED TO BE GOAT

Farmers Reject McGovern's Plan to Have Them Agree That Special Session of Legislature is Necessary.

N. B.—This is one of a series of articles written exclusively for the Gazette on Wisconsin politics.
By Bob Acres.

I predicted last Saturday that Owen
would be the choice of the college for the republican nomination for governor, and Sunday's papers all contained dispatches from Madison confirming this rumor. When Morris all visited Washington during the past winter and all came back with a satisfied air, the Owen move
just now seems somewhat strange.
However, it was predicted months ago that Owen and McGovern were on the best terms of any of the state officers, and the governor, and this may be a sort of olive branch held out to the McGovern men to keep them from putting a gubernatorial candidate in the field.

Meanwhile I have lying on my desk
before me a letter from Meritt Hull in which he states he is going to announce his candidacy for governor within a few days. He intimates that his formal announcement will be made largely with the tax question and the reduction of the useless waste that is now going on. Now I know Meritt Hull to be a fighter. He made strenuous efforts to have the university appropriations cut down, to have the finances of that institution investigated, but failed. His announcement should prove interesting.

Meanwhile Candidate Roethe is already in the field. He has a wonderful scheme to reduce the taxes, to save millions to the state, and is going to demonstrate that a true democratic governor he would make by making through the state on his campaign. Roethe is a very capable and ice in this campaign and causing lots
of worry to the republican leaders.

It is not really strong enough to be dangerous, but it will divide the forces
and the plan knows what may happen.
But to get back to Owen. Both the governor and Attorney General Owen sent out letters to be read at the various town elections last Tuesday, and informed from confidential
sources that McGovern would not be such as he expected, or perhaps they are just what he wanted, for I do not believe he wants to call a special session, while Owen asserts that his reply show that the farmers want a special session and will seek to force an issue.

I have seen several of the reports
personally, read the resolutions passed and am certain that this time the farmers refuse to be the "goats" for the political leaders. They have played monkey and pulled the chestnuts out of the fire for them long enough and now they mean to act and take their own lives. However, that is not the case here. The farmers of the special session has put McGovern
in a hole, and has given him the chance to stand out as the champion of "God's patient people" when he returns to the state to assume active control of the situation.

But meanwhile the democrats are having a "broth of a time." Here is Billy Wolfe kicking over all the milk
pails, and Joe has been gathering and acting like a "bull in a china
shop" in the democratic camp.
He has taken the bit in his teeth and is going to run for United States senator against Ayward. It may be that he will have to give up the idea and offer himself as a candidate for this office to keep peace in the family.
Stranger things than this have happened in the past. Anyway I am convinced Joe will be over there, and his going on and that John getting a small consolation from Washington
these days.

Despite all their efforts no one can be found to run against Karel for the republican nomination for governor.
Thus far he has a clear field and it looks as though "Whispering Frank" Schultz of Milwaukee is having his own troubles in trying to keep Schmitz in check from breaking over and stealing Karel by the hand just now.

However, these days are but a prelude
to the great battle that is to come.
All is not gold that glitters and there is something stirring in the line of non-partisanship which is surprising.
This Philip is the wise man who put that plan for a state convention of republicans sometime this summer into a pigeon hole in his desk and forgot about it. He may get some of the old timers into line, but it is useless to expect a general non-partisan movement, as demonstrated in various county conventions, is doing its work and having its effect. It means a big thing in the end, and a convention
at which party affiliation is moving into the background, and a part when it actually takes place.

Some great big strong man is going to be suggested for governor and a state ticket is going to be suggested and plans made for a state convention of the members of the legislature in every legislative district, and the result is going to be the election of a non-partisan legislature to back up a non-partisan governor.

ELECT SAME MAN TO TWO TOWN OFFICES

Special Election May Be Necessary in Town of Porter to Name
New Town Clerk.

In the town of Porter there is a question as to the legality of the election of the town clerk and it is quite possible that a new election will be necessary. Charles Hong, who governs the town, is retiring clerk, at the polls on Tuesday, was also elected to the office of justice of the peace, and under the law which provides that one man shall not be elected to more than one public office it will probably be the ruling that both offices are vacant. In that case the retiring town clerk, Mr. Towne, will serve until his successor is elected at a special election. Township officials are uncertain whether Mr. Hong can resign from the office of justice of the peace and then qualify as town clerk.
The matter will probably be referred to the attorney general.

The Loan Band of the Congregational church will hold their 11th meeting Monday evening, the 13th. Please note the change of evening.

LARGE CLASS WILL GRADUATE IN JUNE

OVER SIXTY SENIORS ARE EX-PECTED TO RECEIVE DIPLO-MAS AT GRADUATION.

PLAY WILL BE MISSED

Commencement Exercises Will Come
June 9th, 10th, and 11th—Preliminary Work to Start at Once.

President Karl Frick of the senior class at the Janesville high school,
plans to hold commencement exercises this June, which will surpass any previous term of entertainment.
The event will be held at graduation time,
the elimination of the class play, which event has marked the success of past exercises. Mr. Frick is planning to present some entirely new scheme
by which the seniors may be justly proud in presenting.

The class to graduate this year will perhaps be one of the largest, if not the largest, that ever received diplomas at the Janesville high school. Sixty-five to seventy seniors plan to finish their work, although this number is bound to be diminished by five or six. At that, a class of sixty is exceedingly good in a school where the average of graduates per year at the local institution is larger than that found in any surrounding high school in the southern section of Wisconsin.

The exercises for the commencement
will have been set for June 9th, 10th, and 11th. On the opening night, which is termed class night, the welcoming address and other class
numbers, including the prophecy,
history, motto, will, and poem will be presented. The program will be planned for by a vote of the class.
Since the play has been eliminated, it is thought that the prophecy, will and poem, will be again taken up.

A number of the seniors are being arranged for, by those in charge, the entertainment to include music by the orchestra, both class clubs, and by any other musicians in the senior class.

It is understood that the senior class are greatly opposed to the annual pageant, for the reason that it requires a large amount of faithful practice, which is more or less a strain on them. The May fete in the pageant stands out as a big feature of the event and the pageant is abandoned. The girls favor the latter.

The students may call for a special vote on the play situation. If they decide to give up the pageant, the unsuccessful and not as interesting as they might be. Gloom over the throwing out of the play, has spread throughout the senior class, and a brave attempt to revive the plan of producing one will be made.

COMBAT CUT SHORT BETWEEN LABORERS

Street Men Have Grudge Over Election Results and Start Noisy Conflict at City Hall.

Challenging a fellow laborer's vote
at the spring election, a political wrath caused great excitement at the city hall this morning. Shortly before seven o'clock, when two of the street workmen engaged in a melee that would have done justice in the squared ring.

According to reports, one of the workmen challenged the other's vote
at the polls, but kind fate had kept them apart while their wrath grew.
The two men, who were working together for starting the day's work at the city hall. Greetings started words, words started arguments, and both resorted to a liberal use of fists to settle the arguments. The police clerk, who was on duty, heard the rumor, hastened to the street workers' room and found the two men stepping off a fast round; both using plenty of rough tactics in the fighting. Immediately the bout was called a draw by the officers and peace restored momentarily among the men.

The only marks of the struggle was that one of the streetmen had a badly bruised lip, which he stopped a punch from his opponent.

OPEN NIGHT MONDAY AT DRAMATIC CLUB

Outsiders Are Urged to Make Good
the Opportunity of Witnessing
Two Clever Playlets by Members.

The members of the Janesville Dramatic Society will hold an open meeting on next Monday night in the assembly room of the city hall building,
and they issue a special request to those wishing to know what accomplishment the club has made in the line of acting, to be present.

Two clever playlets, one of Irish dialect and the other a modern American production, will be presented at that time. The first playlet is a comedy, and the second is a tragedy. The club's membership. The former production is named "The Pot of Broth,"
and is short, but full of excitement and humor. There are but three players making up the cast, and the acting is of a high order.

The "Glass of Fashion" is the name of the second sketch, having a cast
composed of twelve characterizations, all good. The ridiculous speeches and criticisms made by the club members on the foundation upon which the play is written. Able casts will handle both playlets on Monday night, and it is hoped that the room is filled to its capacity.

The purpose of presenting these two sketches is to give the people of Janesville a chance to learn just what the new organization is doing. As to the giving of the playlets, the club
feels that it is about certain, there has been no date set as yet, but it is thought that full arrangements will be completed in a couple of weeks.

MAKING OUT BOOK LISTS
FOR COUNTRY SCHOOLS

Book lists for the rural schools of the county have practically all been made out at the office of County Surveyor G. D. Antislade. Each district is allowed an annual book fund amounting to ten cents for each scholar enrolled during the year. Catalogues of the books offered by the Educational Supply company, which has the state contract to furnish school library books, have been received at the superintendent's office and will be forwarded to the various teachers
to be used for reference.

Received Word: The local police received word here today from the Baraboo department to the effect that $300 worth of fountain pens were stolen there last night.

ORGANIZE SUFFRAGE BRANCH AT MILTON

Adjunct to Wisconsin Woman's Surfrage Association to be Established in Township.

A branch of the Wisconsin Woman's suffrage association for the township of Milton has been organized in Milton Junction under the direction of Mrs. M. G. Townsend, vice president of Rock county. Miss Eleanor Wilbur was elected vice president of the Milton precinct. The purpose of the association is to carry on the state propaganda, including the Educational, the Woman's Journal, Wisconsin Citizens and Social Progress. The local committee is under the able direction of Mrs. Vincent, who chooses her own assistant. The literary committee, which will make the German line a feature of the Milton precinct. The club will be conducted by Mrs.
Kate Richardson, the efficient vice president for Milton township of 1912,
who by indefatigable labor and her co-workers, landed the township with the banner of having the greatest number of votes favoring equal suffrage for women prorata to its inhabitants of any township in the state. Mrs. L. Rogers was elected recording and corresponding secretary, choosing her own assistant.
The Rev. W. A. Leighton, pastor of the First Congregational church, Milton, will be the national secretary of the association. The association will be off in the ministerial line by uniting with the association, and being in touch with many phases of the value of equal suffrage, for women, have been receiving new suggestions and were highly appreciated. The meetings of the association will be held the first Wednesday of each month,
beginning May 6th, place of meeting
to be announced later.

STORMS THREATEN A SUNNY EASTER

Northern and Southern States Are Visited By Snow and Rain
Friday.

Two severe storms, one over Lake Superior, threatening snow, and the other in western Texas, threatening rain, respectively appeared late Friday night, throwing new complications
in the way of the weather forecasters,
who struggled against heavy odds to predict the fortunes of the Easter promenades.

According to the latest reports of the weather bureau, the indications are that rain or snow might be expected throughout the central and northern states east of the Mississippi.

The followers of fashions, fads and flowers will necessarily be disappointed
as the brightness of gowns and the latest styles of hats must be hidden during the Easter parade that is inevitable with Easter Sunday in Janesville.

Washington weather sharps say it probably will be a rainy Sunday all over the north, unless there is some break of nature according to the prediction of the weather bureau experts, who say there will be rain and perhaps snow in the northern portions of the east and rain over the southeast.

It is a stock prediction among lay weather prophets that if it rains on Easter Sunday it will rain for seven consecutive Sundays thereafter. The winter face back of the last few days
has been dissipated all over the country today. A paring shot at freezing temperature was being felt all over the northwest areas.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS

Two Give Bonds: William Ellis who was held in custody until the June term of the federal court, at the Rock county jail, this morning was released

Janesville Gun Club are planning to set a trap shoot at the grounds on North Washington street. Inclement weather has kept the members from the traps for the last week, and it is planned to hold weekly events every Friday during the spring and summer.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

In the fall of 1873, when the Burr Robbins show, located in Janesville, was the only one of the kind in the city, there were several people with the show that made the home of the winter wherever they happened to be. Among the number was a man by the name of Sam Dickey, and while he was billed as the principal clown of the show, he was also a good all-around performer and a good deal of a tumbler, which made him an all-around valuable man with the show. Sam Dickey located in Janesville and it was here that he made his home for five or six years.

A year or two later Burr Robbins brought what was known as the "Lion Farm," at the foot of South Main street, which he turned into winter quarters for his show. He built a monstrous barn for his horses, ring, lion, paint shop, and an animal house, and in the fall of 1875, after the close of the show, Sam Dickey occupied the building, a small island in the center of a lake which was near the animal house to the north.

Dickey took his shovel and wheelbarrow and went to work, and after two or three weeks of hard work he had completed a small island in the center of this lake, where he planted half a dozen small trees, covered the earth with small stones and gravel and erected a flag pole in the center, and in a few days there was a white flag with flaming red letters which read, "Dickey's Island." But Dickey's island was not of long duration. A year or two later, when the floods came in the spring, Dickey's island was swept away, but for some time like two years the small island erected by Sam Dickey was something of a novelty in winter quarters.

It was along in the summer of 1880 that the "Lion Farm" was sold to Janesville, Ill., and during the evening performance the toughs of the city got troublesome around the dressing room, and after they had cut several times in the canvas, Dickey made up his mind to leave the city and drive them away. Dickey was a powerful man and knew no fear, and it was not long before the city toughs were badly done up by Dickey, who was a few minutes later to the ring and went to work after the show and was out in the evening Dickey and myself were returning to the hotel. We had to cross several railroad tracks which were crowded with freight cars close up to the roadway. Between these freight cars the toughs had secreted themselves, and as Dickey and I were passing one of them threw a heavy stone which struck Dickey on the side of the head. This laid him out, and the toughs made good their escape. After some time I got some help and we took Sam to the hotel. This injury proved later to be his undoing. While he was only laid out for a few days, every one around the show could plainly see that Sam was not himself, and while he finished the season, this proved to be his last year with any show.

It was along in the winter that his sickness proved to be consumption, and early in the summer Sam Dickey died in a hospital at Chicago. While Dickey was rough in a way, he was a kind hearted man and one of the best friends I ever knew. Many of the older citizens of Janesville remember Sam Dickey's little island.

March 29, at the Breakers hotel, Palm Beach, Florida, occurred the death of Benjamin Keith, "the father of continuous vaudeville," and while I am under obligations to the New York Clipper for the notice of his career in the business, for many years I will tell you something about Keith's first career in show business. Mr. Keith's first career in this business was in George Bunell's Museum in New York City, and this was before he was out of his teens. He remained with Mr. Bunell for a year or two and later went to the Barnum show, where he remained for a year. In 1881 he joined the Adam Forepaugh show at Washington, D. C. On April 20, and it was here that I first met him, and we soon became warm friends. Mr. Keith had a private in his side show as an assistant, Edward Albee, who, by the way, was the favorite of Mr. Keith's employees from that time until his death last month.

Mr. Keith's privilege with the show in 1881 made him some money, and soon after joining it he got a large express envelope and asked me if I would not be his banker for a season. He said "I want to have my money with the show, where I can use it if necessary, and I will only bother you once or twice a week at the most, and then the season closes I will have my money with me wherever I see fit to go."

Although Mr. Keith had been in business for ten years before and had branched out several times in a small way for himself, up to this time he never had made money. When closing the season that year at Chattanooga, Tenn., Benjamin Franklin Keith and Eddie Albee, who had been his faithful helper during the summer, took their express envelopes, which contained several hundred dollars, and left for Boston, Mass. It was along some time in February that Mr. Keith leased a store room, or a part of one, and started in the museum business on a very small scale, and it was not very many years later that he commenced to make history in vaudeville and hall show business, and long before his death his name was a household word, as you might say, the world over. People who were close to Mr. Keith say that at his death he left many millions, and the foundation for his great fortune was laid in 1881 with the Forepaugh show, and the express envelope in the ticket wagon was his first bank.

His real career as a showman began in 1882, when, in company with William Austin, he opened a popular price show in a hall in Boston.

"My only attraction," said Mr. Keith, "was Bessie Albee, a middle-aged woman who was very much weighed but one and one-half pounds, but I installed a small stage in the rear of our room and secured several acts from the variety theaters, with the understanding that all vulgar or suggestive language was to be cut out of every act. Soon an upstairs room was added, and from time to time, as the business increased, additional

LICENSE BOOKMAKING TO CHECK GAMBLING

GERMANS PASS STRICT LAWS PREVENTING FRAUD AT RACE TRACK PLUNGING.

EXPECT MUCH REVENUE

Government to Have Six Percent of All Wagers And Additional Bonus for Amounts.

Won at Odds.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, April 11.—The German authorities have been capitulating to the demands of the racing fraternity. After continued and vain attempts to put an end to promiscuous betting on horse races, which involves a sum of $150,000,000 annually, estimated at $150,000,000 and $200,000,000, they have decided to license bookmaking in an effort to secure for the state a percentage of this sum. A measure to this end, already reported by the Reichstag, and is now awaiting the action of the Reichstag. It is hoped to have it become effective in time for the Baden-Baden races next August.

Heretofore the only form of betting sanctioned by law has been by means of the pari-mutuel machine. This, however, was available only to persons able to visit the racetracks. The result is that a vast army of bookmakers, estimated at 8,000, ply their business in defiance of the law. In addition every barbershop and thousands of cafes and similar resorts harbor their handbook men.

Competent authorities estimate the number of business places where wagers can be laid on horse races at over 200,000. Prosecutions for bookmaking increased from 1,600 in 1906 to 4,000 in 1912. Even the most vigorous provisions against illicit betting, punishing both bookmaker and bettor (the latter with fines up to $250), experts believe the illicit books will continue to flourish not only because the wage-earners, clerks and small-salaried men who today furnish the bulk of the handbook custom cannot afford the minimum stake of $12 but because the heavy taxation of the licensed bookmakers will enable the handbook men to offer far better odds.

To Tax Bets. Since six percent of every bet entered will go to the government as an initial tax, and winning bets will be mulcted with an additional tax of from 6 percent on bets at odds of two to one or less, up to 20 percent on the long shot of twenty to one or better, the man who plays a heavily-backed, odds-on favorite, say at 7 to 5, may risk a possible five rather than the certain loss of nearly half of his scanty winnings. The backers of hundreds of one outsiders the prospective surrender of some $25 of a $100 win will be equally deterrent.

Legalized Gambling. Limiting authorizing gambling under this law to horse racing, the government in its introduction to the bill pronounced against betting on football and other sports popular with the "middle and lower classes" to save them from the gambling contagion. Officers and soldiers are also classed in the undesirable category, bookmakers being forbidden to accept bets from members of the military forces, and betting on races with gentlemen jockeys is also prohibited.

Must Pay Bets. An important provision of the proposed law makes winning wagers collectible at law, provided they are each cash wagers. This, it is believed, will greatly reduce the number of dishonest bookmakers. The maximum penalty for unlicensed bookmaking is a fine of two years imprisonment and $1,500 fine, as against six months and $125 at present. Bettors dealing with unlicensed bookmakers also make themselves liable to imprisonment and fine, and to the loss of all sums wagered, which will be confiscated by the state. The police may forbid the publishing of tips and form sheets.

Expect Returns. The government estimates that the new law will produce at least $6,000,000 annually, of which $2,000,000 will go to the states where the races in question are held, to be devoted to the encouragement of horse breeding, and $4,000,000 to the federal treasury. Despite the reduction of the tax on pari-mutuel takings it is not believed that returns will be below the present figures, which are approximately $3,000,000 yearly, since the state through the machines is not permitted with restrictions, on races outside Germany. Under the existing law, the machines may be employed only for domestic races.

NEW VOLCANIC ISLAND IS STILL UNCHRISTENED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokyo, April 11.—The baby island of the Bonin group which came into existence following the eruption of Sakurajima has not yet been christened. As the island appeared during the coronation year of the present emperor, there were many suggestions that it should be given his name, Taisho. But it has been found that the new island occupies the exact position of a similar island which appeared several years ago and has since disappeared, so official circles have decided that it would be better to wait until it shows some signs of permanence. It is considered that it would be very inauspicious for an island bearing the emperor's name to sink into the sea.

MILLIONS LOST IN BRITISH LABOR STRIKES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, April 11.—Eighty-seven million dollars in wages have been lost by the workmen of the United Kingdom in the past ten years on account of stoppages due to industrial disputes of all kinds, according to statistics prepared from the government board of trade returns, supplemented in details furnished by union leaders in the principal trades. But against this figure is placed a net gain in wages as the result of such disputes of $13,600,000. Also, it is estimated that the laboring classes as a whole have secured advances in wages in the same period aggregating $75,000,000 but the greater proportion of these have been obtained through the medium of working agreements and conciliation. Fifty per cent of the strikes of the past ten years have been won by the employers, 25 per cent by the workers, and the other 25 per cent compromised.

JAPANESE YOUTH ON TRIP AROUND GLOBE

Cable Notes Show Jap Steamship Lines Striving For Government Subsidy For Panama Line.

Tokyo, March 11.—Youthful chauvinistic sportsmen are eagerly following the movements of a young Japanese named Okubo, who has just started on a bicycle trip around the world. Strapped to his wheel, Okubo carries a precious bag of sand which he shovelled from the grounds of the palace of his emperor. His intention is to sprinkle a little sand whenever he reaches a Japanese colony or comes to a place where a number of Japanese live. "My idea," he explained before starting, "is to remind Japanese abroad of their native country—the glorious Mikado Empire."

Rooster Kills Child. Japanese doctors are discussing the unusual if not unprecedented case of a child meeting death from the beak of a rooster. A four-year-old girl was walking to a playground near her father's house in Tokyo when she was attacked by a rooster who pecked at her viciously. The girl ran, stumbled and fell, hitting a stone. Before the onlookers could interfere the rooster had again picked the child in the forehead. The child was picked up dead.

Shippers Compete. A lively competition has been going on between Japanese steamship companies which hope to get a government subsidy for a steamship line through the Panama canal to the eastern coast of the United States, with terminus at Boston. At the present it looks as if the Nippon Yusen Kaisha would be selected and that the company will be accorded a subsidy of $1,000,000. The other competitors were the Toyo Kisen Kaisha and the Osaka Shosen Kaisha. The Toyo Kisen will continue its service to San Francisco but it is probable that the Nippon Yusen will discontinue its service to Seattle and turn it over to the Osaka company which is building extra steamers to be used on the northern route which it will henceforth monopolize.

Dashing English Army Officer Is Partial to Elderly Women

Lady Randolph Churchill (left), Mrs. Patrick Campbell and George Cornwallis West.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, April 11.—London has fairly recovered from the surprise caused by the recent marriage of Lieut. George Cornwallis West, dashing British army officer, to Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the actress. It was supposed that his trouble with his first wife, Lady Churchill, had mostly sprung from the disparity in their ages, she being twenty-seven years his senior. The prediction had been made that when West, who looks twenty-five though he is twenty-nine, married again he would select a youthful partner. Mrs. Campbell is fifty.

ROME TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY APRIL 21; WOMEN SEEK RIGHTS

Italian Women Seek Freedom From Restriction and Customs of Nation—Are Not Suffragettes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rome, April 11.—With the passing of the Giolitti Cabinet the leaders of the feminist movement in Italy have taken up a new campaign, in the hope that the new ministers of the government will deal more favorably with their cause. There is no militant element in the feminist movement of Italy, and no sex antagonism, but women are anxious to free themselves from certain restrictions which the laws of the land and the customs of society have imposed. Originally designed for the protection of women, it is declared these laws are now a burden. The vote is the women's ultimate goal but at present they are hoping particularly for the opening of the professions to them and the repeal of such laws as those prohibiting a married woman from opening a bank account without the consent of her husband.

Venice Exhibition. The theory that feminine beauty cannot be divided into types according to nationality but that it is absolutely international in character will be demonstrated by a special exhibit of paintings by Anglada, the Spanish master, at the coming Exhibition of Fine Arts at Venice.

He has been honored with an invitation to show his pictures in a separate room, and the exhibit will be composed entirely of feminine portraits. Within two years it is expected that the pavilions of the different countries around the Central Palace of the Venice group of art buildings will be completed by the addition of those of Germany, Austria and the United States on the island of Saint Elena, which will be connected with the gardens of the exhibition by three beautiful bridges.

Rome's Birthday. Rome will celebrate her 2867th birthday on April 21st with a general holding of flags and illumination, but there will be no revival this year of the celebrated Feast of the Century, the ancient ceremony, which was last attempted in 1900, when the Pope and Paterfamilias rang, as it did twenty centuries before, with the invocation by Horace to the "Alma Sol" in which he asserted that the sun in its passage around the world would see no such sight as Rome. Although the year of Rome's birthday is officially recognized as 753 B. C., recent archaeological discoveries indicate that it should be moved back many centuries.

Another celebration now in progress is in commemoration of the work of Bramante, called "the Prince of Modern Architecture," who died in 1514. Bramante's work is scattered all over Italy and Rome but his most celebrated edifices here are the Palace of the Cancelleria and the Courts of San Damaso and the Belvedere at the Vatican. His was the original design for the present St. Peter's, but both he and his patron, Pope Julius II, died soon after the building was begun. Had he lived, Michelangelo's cupola, considered a marvel of architecture, would not have been realized.

MAKE IMPROVEMENTS IN CANAL DISTRICT

Modernize City of Pedro Miguel Where Giant Locks Are—Large Dredger Ready for Work.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Panama, April 11.—It is understood that Henry Pettier, of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, who has arrived on the Isthmus to classify the native woods of Panama, will soon undertake the organization of two agricultural schools in the republic. The Panama authorities requested Mr. Pettier's services for the collection of native woods. They will be a part of the Panama National Exhibition which will be opened next year.

The third battalion of the 10th Infantry, stationed at Camp Otis, has just completed a forced march through the jungle from Chorrera in the province of Cooles. The distance covered, 27 miles, was made in one day. It was found that the main trail has been well cleared by the Panama government. About 75 per cent of the battalion is composed of recruits who thus made their first practice march.

Pedro Miguel, where the canal locks of that name are located, is to be one of the model permanent towns of the Isthmus. The Canal Government has been busy there for several months in the hope of having the place completed in time for the opening of the canal next year. Macadam streets and concrete sidewalks are being laid and many new houses are being built for the operating force of the locks. A large playground for children and tennis and baseball grounds also are well under way. In front of the Young Men's Christian Association building is to be the plaza, which will be one of the beauty spots of the town.

The dredge Gamboa, the largest dipper dredge ever built, has arrived on the Isthmus and is being assembled for work. It is the intention of the canal authorities to have the dredge begin the widening of the channel in Culebra Cut in front of the Cucaracha and Culebra slides at an early date. The dipper of this new dredge has a capacity of 15 cubic yards. Another dredge of the same type and capacity, the Paraiso, is expected to arrive soon.

The dredge Corozal which was to have been at work before this in deepening the channel through Culebra Cut, has been drydocked in the east upper chamber of Gatun locks, just above the five submarines in the same chamber. An explosion in an oil tank did considerable damage to several bulkheads and hull of the big dredge. In order to drydock her in the same lock chamber the submarines were asked fast to the bottom of the lock, which was then filled.

PREPARE RECEPTION FOR ENGLISH RULER

Cabinet Asks French Parliament for Eighty-four Thousand to Entertain Visiting Monarchs.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Paris, April 11.—Cabinet has asked Parliament to vote the equivalent of $34,000 to entertain the Kings of England and Denmark when they visit Paris for a couple of days this month. Three quarters of this sum is to be spent by the Foreign office in decorations, receptions, official dinners and special trains. The performance at the Opera will take $5,000, the carriage hire $2,500, the tips to servants $450, the military review $11,000 and the extra expenses of the police and secret service $2,500. The royalties will be lodged at the Foreign office and their apartments will be furnished with pieces from the museums and hung with antique Gobelin tapestries and old masters.

Midget Soldier. The French army has admitted to its ranks a Midget named Defiance who although of the military age, 20, weighs only 42 pounds and is only 3 feet three and one quarter inches tall. The medical board found him physically fit in every way. It is understood he will be assigned to duties which will not oblige him to carry the marching outfit of the French soldier. The outfit is one and one half times the midget's weight.

A GOOD SON. "Why, Mrs. Murphy, you look quite festive today. Anything going on?"

"Yes, my son Bill comes out today." "But I thought he got seven years?" "He did, but they're letting him out two years sooner because he's behaved so well." "What a comfort it must be to you to have such a good son!"

Built That Way. Rankin—"Every time I get up to try to make a speech I can feel my knees knocking together." Fyle—"Naturally. If your legs bent outward, as mine do, instead of bending inward, you wouldn't have any of that trouble."

SPRING SICKNESS COMES TO EVERYONE

Spring sickness comes in some degree to every man, woman and child in our climate. It is that run-down condition of the system, that results from impure, impoverished, devitalized blood. It is marked by loss of appetite and that tired feeling, and in many cases by some form of eruption. The best way to treat spring sickness is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Ask your druggist for this all-the-year-round medicine. It purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood.

Costs You 30% Less--

THE man who buys without comparing or analyzing only succeeds in grossly fooling himself. The better you acquaint yourself with values the more intelligently and economically you can buy.

If, in one car, you can get a longer wheelbase for less money than THAT car offers a greater value.

If, in one car, you get a more powerful motor for less money than THAT car offers you still greater value.

If, in one car, you get larger tires for less money than again in THAT car you get an additional value.

And so on throughout the entire car. If the fundamentals are larger, better and more powerful and the purchase price is less, which does it seem reasonable to buy?

The closer you make such an investigation the better the Overland shows up—and the harder it is on our competitors. Why is it you seldom see any of our competitors advertising their specifications? Are they afraid or ashamed?

Be that as it may, here are the facts:

The $950 Overland has a motor that is as large and as powerful as in most $1200 cars. COMPARE AND SEE.

The $950 Overland has a wheel base as long as

on most $1200 cars. COMPARE AND SEE.

The $950 Overland is roomier, has greater leg stretch and more actual comfort than most $1200 cars. COMPARE AND SEE.

The $950 Overland has tires as large as on most $1200 cars. COMPARE AND SEE.

The $950 Overland has electric lights throughout, the same as $3000 to $5000 cars. COMPARE AND SEE.

$950 Overland has just as complete and just as expensive equipment as most $1500 cars. COMPARE AND SEE.

The $950 Overland is just as superbly and richly finished as any $1500 car. COMPARE AND SEE.

The $950 Overland is manufactured just as carefully as any car. COMPARE AND SEE.

And such greater value for less money is possible on account of our enormous and therefore economical production methods, because we are the largest manufacturers in the world of this type of car.

Why hesitate? There are more Overlands being sold today than any other competing car made. And this is because we continue to give more standard car for less actual money.

The purchase of an Overland will save you a clear 30%.

A DUTCH COLONIAL COTTAGE—By John Henry Newson "Home of Character" No. 185

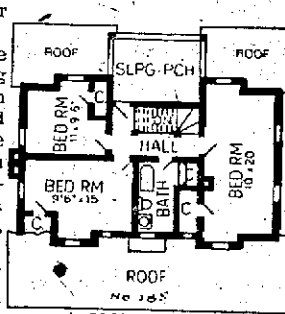

Twenty-four-inch shingles are used on the exterior of this old Dutch Colonial Cottage, which, together with the tight shingle barge and simple treatment, accentuates the old fashioned Colonial design. The wide porch extends across the entire front of the house and the large kitchen is enclosed in lattice, making an out-of-door kitchen for the warm months.

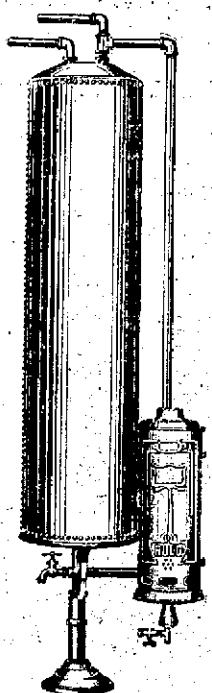

The living room and library make practically one room and the dining room also opens into the living room with a wide arch. The kitchen and dining room are connected by a service pantry and the breakfast room or porch makes an attractive feature. The second floor contains three bedrooms, bath and a large sleeping porch; no attic, but basement under main rooms.

This house, 36x27 feet, was built complete, except furnace, for a little under $3000. A furnace would cost about $100 more. It should be duplicated for the same sum.

Any Gazette reader, who desires further information concerning No. 185, should address "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette." There will be no charge for Mr. Newson's answers.

More Hot Water at a Low Cost For Fuel

We all know that laundrying, cleaning, bathing, in fact, nearly every phase of home life, is dependent upon a plentiful hot water supply, and that the ease with which these various functions are performed depends to a greater degree on the efficiency of your hot water services. Quicker hot water without fuss, troubles or worry, can be had by connecting a Ruud Circulating Double Coil Heater to your boiler; the simple lighting of a match and a turn of the valve starts the heater in operation; in a few minutes you have plenty of scalding hot water available at any faucet in the house.

DRESS DISTINCTION.

IN A BUSINESS office which I sometimes have occasion to visit there are over a dozen typists and stenographers, some of them very pretty. But as I pass through their department my eye always rests with pleasure on a little figure. I don't suppose by the canons of beauty she would be judged as particularly pretty; certainly she is not as pretty as some of the other girls. It is the taste and distinctiveness of her simple but attractive little office rig which makes her stand out.

My little typist has red hair and gray eyes, and she builds her clothes out of gray and green. Perhaps she may vary this at home, but I have never seen her wearing any other color in the office.

The last time I saw her was in winter. She had on a gray flannel shirtwaist, very simple but well cut, and an excellently fitting tailored skirt of a slightly darker gray. At her throat was a bow of the vividest Kelly green. That was typical of her winter costume. In summer she usually wears some simple little frock of soft green, or of gray with a touch of green.

Nothing she wears is expensive. It couldn't be. Her salary is by no means large and she may not spend it all upon herself. But by selecting these extremely becoming colors and sticking to them, she has created for herself a style of her own. She is distinctive. She stands out among girls who have more expensive clothes and a great many more of them.

Distinctiveness in dressing is a fine art. You may follow the styles to a reasonable extent and yet have a distinctive style of your own if you will put enough taste into the matter.

There is never anything old fashioned or out of style about my little typist's wardrobe, and yet by her clever use of those two colors she makes her clothes distinctive. Gray and green stand for her in people's minds. They are her trade mark, and since they suit her so well, a very attractive trade mark.

I know several people who have adopted some kind of clothes trade mark and I think it is an excellent idea. I believe I have told you about the girl who never appeared without some touch of scarlet. Another girl whom I used to know in college always wore a beautiful string of corals. In my mental picture of this girl the corals are almost as much a part of her as the sweet pale face, the gray eyes and the soft, dark hair. She always wore the colors with which coral is particularly exquisite such as dull blue and soft green, and the whole effect was a distinction and charm of appearance which never faded back to me across the years, though prettier faces and hands, finer frocks than hers are quite forgotten.

Have your clothes distinctive, or might they just as well belong to someone else?

Distinction, you know, does not necessarily cost any more, at least not in money. The price you pay for it is reckoned in terms of brains.

Women Worth While.

MADAME BRYN.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon
In Washington, as in other national capitals, society has a distinctive character. It is cosmopolitan, and women from all parts of the world, representing different customs, religions and standards of culture, give to social life there an interest and piquancy which have no counterpart in and other American city.

An interesting figure in this cosmopolitan society is Madame Bryn, the wife of the Norwegian minister to the United States. Madame Bryn has been much of the world, for besides being widely traveled she has lived for a number of years both in Paris and in Buenos Ayres, where her husband held diplomatic posts.

Madame Bryn remains today, however, a typical woman of Norway, not only in appearance, but in many of her tastes. She is tall and slender and she has the blue eyes, yellow hair and fair skin characteristic of the Nordic race. She was born in old Trondheim, a city of ancient customs, which, until recent years, was the "farthest north" railroad station in the world.

In Trondheim for hundreds of years past Norwegian kings have been crowned, the cathedral there being one of the finest in the world. And it was in this far northern city that one of the coldest days ever known in northern Norway that the wedding of Madame Bryn took place. She was before her marriage, Miss Laura Grilstad.

The Minister and Madame Bryn have four children, who are among the most interesting of the little foreigners in the diplomatic corps. When they came to Washington a little over three years ago, not one of the Bryn children could speak English. They were kept out of school a year, as their parents feared a lack of knowledge of the language would prove a handicap to them. Now they speak our tongue as easily as if it were their own.

When it comes to winter sports, for which the people of Norway are famed, it is probable that Madame Bryn excels her children, who have spent their first years in warmer climates. To this day she loves to dwell upon the skiing feats of the girls and boys who were her playmates. She declares that though she was always perfectly at home on skis, she was never an expert at the sport. She remembers having seen her brother make a jump of ninety feet on skis, which, she says, is a record jump. As a girl, she spent many happy hours on ice skates and sledging.

Madame Bryn's children, though they have never had their mother's experience at winter sports, are as fond of out-of-door life as she is. Her oldest son is devoted to the great American game of baseball and her two girls love tennis. They are also fond of skating and whenever there is a good snow and freeze in Washington they are among the children who spend hours with ice skates, sleds and toboggans in Rock Creek park.

Madame Bryn has never had an opportunity to vote since the women of Norway were enfranchised. She is, however, an advocate of equal suffrage.

Bread cut in fancy shapes.

Bread and Butter Pudding.—Cover the bottom of a shallow baking dish with apple sauce. Cut stale bread in one-third inch slices spread with softened butter, remove the crusts and cut in triangular shaped pieces then arrange closely together over the apple sauce. Sprinkle plentifully of sugar over it, to which is added a few drops of vanilla. Bake in a moderate oven and serve with cream.

Hot Water Sponge Cake.—Yolks of two eggs, one cup of sugar, three-eighths cup of hot water, milk, one-quarter teaspoonful of lemon extract, whites of two eggs, one cup of flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt. Beat the yolks of the eggs until thick and lemon-colored, add one-half the sugar gradually and continue beating; then add the water, remaining sugar, lemon extract, and the flour mixed and sifted with the baking powder and salt. Bake twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven in a buttered and floured shallow pan.

Bread and Butter Pudding.—One small baker's stale loaf, butter, three eggs, one-half cup of sugar, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, one quart of milk. Remove the end crusts from the bread, cut the loaf in one-half inch slices, spread each slice generously with butter; arrange in a buttered dish, layered, buttered side down. Beat eggs slightly, add the sugar, salt and the milk, tarrar, and pour over the bread; let stand thirty minutes. Bake one hour in a moderate oven, covering the top with a sheet of paper. The top of the pudding should be well browned. Serve with hard or creamy sauce.

WOMEN, we lose heart, we should remember that the source of good fortune never diminishes or disappears. That source forever remains within reach of every one.—Progress.

MORE ABOUT FRUITS.

As the pineapple is next to the citrus fruits in value when in good condition we need to remember its worth and use it as often as our purses will allow. It is rich in mineral salts, which with its sugar and the large percentage of water, purify the system and soothe the stomach. Any one who has eaten a large amount of the acid pineapple knows that it will eat into the mucous membrane of the mouth, thus showing its activity. It contains a vegetable counterpart to the gastric juice which will digest raw beef or an egg when mixed with it. This ananiasin is also active with either acids or alkaline carbonates. Those who have tried to use it with gelatin will remember that a much larger quantity of gelatin must be used to thicken the material when pineapple is used, because of this digestive principle which acts on the gelatin and deprives it of its thickening power.

Pineapple juice is recommended by physicians as a gargle in case of sore throat and even diphtheria; it is also extremely healing in catarrhal affections.

Apple Tea.—This is a most helpful tea for invalids. Roast very tart apples and pour boiling water over them; let stand until cool. This may be sweetened if desired.

Apple Water.—This is a cooling drink in case of fever. Pare and core three large apples, good flavored and juicy, slice them into a crock or pitcher with the grated yellow rind of a lemon. On this pour a pint of boiling water and cover well, let stand for four hours, strain and sweeten with loaf sugar.

The medicinal value of the raspberry is not fully appreciated as it ranks with the strawberry as valuable in liver and gouty troubles. These fruits contain a large per cent of citric acid and salts of lime. People who find that strawberries disagree with them will find the addition of a bit of red pepper will prevent the difficulties of digesting them; and they may also be made acceptable to the system if taken with a small quantity of bicarbonate of potash.

Citric acid is found in all kinds of currants and the black currant is said to be especially valuable for kidney and bladder troubles.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been going with a girl for about a year and a half. She said she loves me very much. She is very good to me. I love her very much. But when we are out on the streets and go to shows she is all the time looking for someone. I know I am jealous of her. At times she could break her neck to speak to fellows we pass when we go to the theatre. Do you think I ought to quit her or tell her about it. Do you think a girl of this kind can be true?

(2) She goes with a girl. I do not like very well. How can I stop her without making her mad at me?

(3) When boy friends come to see her brother she can have a good time, talk and have lots of fun. When her girl friends come she sits where she can see me and she never has much to say. Why is this?

(4) How can I find out if this girl is true to me, and if she goes with other fellows?

VAGAR JEATER.
(1) Have you asked the girl to marry you yet? I presume you have merely told her you love her and that is all. You really love her and want to marry her, ask her if she will be your wife. If she says "Yes," that is proof enough that she loves you. I believe, from what you say, that she does love you, and that she is acting the way she does mostly because you haven't quite come up to the mark with her. Girls do that, you know.

(2) Don't be bossy. You probably go with boys she doesn't like. Give her the same rights you expect for yourself.

(3) and (4) These questions are answered in No. 1.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Would you kindly inform me:

(1st) How to make salt beads?

(2d) Will salt beads melt if they get wet? Also are they easily broken?

(3d) What other kind of beads can one make at home?

E. C.
(1) Salt Beads—One cup of corn starch, one-half cup table salt, one-half cup water. Let come to boil, boil hard, remove from fire, add any color desired. Stir till cool enough to knead. Knead well, form into beads by rolling small portions in palms of hand, string on wires or hat pins. Lay aside to dry. Polish in hands after they are dried, with a little olive oil.

(2) They might get soft. They are not easily broken.

(3) Allspice beads are pretty. Get five cents worth whole allspice. Sort out large pieces of even size, soak over night in water, then while soft string alternately with little gold glass beads.

You can also make rose beads.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What do you think of a boy that disappointed you and tells your girl friend to tell you that he was sick and you find out it is not true?

(2) Should I talk to him the next time I meet him?

(3) I went out with a fellow once and he wrote me a letter telling me he loved me and wants to come and take me out again. Should I go out with him again? He is rich, but I do not care for him because he does not dress nicely and I feel cheap to walk on the street with him.

(4) What should I tell him the next time I go out with him? BABY.

(1) We nearly all think alike about people who tell lies. A gentleman won't disappoint a girl unless he has an excellent reason, and then he apologizes to the girl and tries to make it up to her in some way.

(2) Do not let him think you are too much interested in him; so speak to him politely and let it go at that.

(3) Another case of puppy love. He probably loves every other girl just as much after he's been out with her once. Don't go with a mushy boy, whether he dresses well or not.

(4) I see you intend to go with him whether I advise against it or not. I presume you will say what you please to him, so my dear, I'm not going to answer this question.

We Get You, Madam.

A lady was heard to remark recently: "My mother was the only one of my aunts who was ever married." A "bull," decidedly; but really not much worse than Milton's "fairest of her daughters, Eve."

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
Before using a new comb wash it in soapy water and when dry rub with a little olive oil. It will then last twice as long.

To make jam or marmalade look clear without skimming it add a piece of butter the size of an egg before removing the fruit from the fire.

When next cooking asparagus add a little rice. The dish will be found most satisfactory.

Let potatoes lie in cold water for a little while before paring, if you wish them to be white.

as they will snap, untie the hunches wash, remove the scales and relish. Cook in boiling salted water fifteen minutes, or until soft, leaving tip out of the water the first ten minutes. Drain, remove the string and spread with soft butter, allowing one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter to each bunch of asparagus.

Purée to Spinach—Wash and pick over one-half peck of spinach. Cook in an uncovered vessel with a large quantity of boiling salted water, to which is added one-third teaspoonful of soda and one-half teaspoonful of sugar. Drain and chop finely, rub through a sieve. Reheat and add three tablespoonfuls of butter, one cup of cream. Arrange on a serving dish and garnish with the yolk and white of a hard-boiled egg and fried

SCARECROW METHODS DON'T EXCITE VOTERS

MILWAUKEE ELECTION SHOWS
SENSATIONAL TACTICS FAIL TO AROUSE PUBLIC.

COMMENT ON POLITICS

State Situation, Socialists' Strength
and Other Matters Treated by Milwaukee Correspondent.

By Ellis B. Usher.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 11.—The large fact which the Milwaukee municipal election of last Tuesday established is that something besides the machinery of elections is necessary to develop popular interest. It is also apparent that the scarecrow of our latter day politics have been so overworked that nobody gets excited, except the few people who cuff them up on every occasion and make a din for their own entertainment. Milwaukee should cast at least 75,000 votes, after discounting all non-voters, incompetents and the usual proportion of stay-at-homes. In the primary on March 21, with four candidates for mayor in the field, and awful perils yawning over us, if we believed the orators and newspapers, Milwaukee polled a total of 63,114 votes and on Tuesday last at the election the total vote was only 56,780, and had not 5,500 less votes than he did two years ago, and Seidel was short by 1,150. The total vote two years ago on mayor was 75,110, practically a full vote, as voting goes under the present system. So the spool of the first real trial of our "non-partisan" law, that was to help bring on the millennium, is a falling off of about 15 per cent in the total vote, a loss of 13 per cent in valid votes, and a loss of Seidel of a little less than 4 per cent. Every paper in the city except the Social Democratic daily was buried for days with the perils of Socialism. Everything has been said, and in the superlative, that could be said, but the Socialists have elected their city attorney, eight aldermen and five supervisors, and if their candidates generally had been regarded as well as Boan for ability and efficiency the entire Socialist ticket might have won.

Socialists Less Dangerous.

People are getting so they don't discriminate very much as between progressives and Socialists, except that they are rather inclined, other things being equal, to regard the avowed Socialist as the more sincere and least dangerous. He is more openly an enemy of free institutions and is, therefore, more easy to keep track of. Aside from Boan, however, the quality of the Socialist ticket was below grade in knowledge and capacity for large public affairs. A majority of those who voted exercised the discrimination. As it comes out, Rose was an advantage to Harding, who, judging from the final returns, got about all the Rose votes. As it now looks, it almost anybody who had attacked Harding's administration for high taxes and high expenditures, it would have beaten him for the nomination, and but for the stir that the Rose men made, the Socialists might have won. A smart Norwegian girl that I know told me not long ago that the men of her acquaintance can no longer understand our politics. I think that accounts for many stay-at-home votes. I vote like a blind man my self most of the time, under the present system, and I find many other men who tell me they do. If people have to choose, for example, between Victor Berger and Henry Cochems for congress, they take the chance of Berger. If they could really express their choice they would beat them both.

Too Much "Yap."

It is hard for any American to keep posted in these days on public matters, there is so much talk and so little of it to be trusted. Some of it, a good deal of it, is mere "yap," and a good deal more is so biased and one-sided as to be trustworthy. It is, therefore, of interest to get an outside opinion and from a source not to be regarded as especially biased in favor of America, because of a growing rivalry in world commerce and finance. A recent report of the great Deutsche Bank of Berlin has the following paragraph about American railroads:

Moreover, American railroads need higher freight rates; their present rates are the lowest in the world, representing, for instance, but a fraction of the English railway rates, and this in face of the fact that wages in the United States on the average are fully twice as high as in Europe.

It is an event of genuine importance in relation to Wisconsin, that Dr. Charles McCarthy has raised his voice in protest against Governor McGovern's idea that the executive should have power to veto items of the entire budget separately. Dr. McCarthy says: "I am on record time and again against the budget bill. He is also 'on record' as saying that he does not wish to be understood as opposing the budget system. He now thinks that 'the legislature ought to pass on each bill separately, to avoid 'pork-barrel, rider-covered legislation.' Dr. McCarthy is also on record as saying:

"Why not take by taxation some of that wealth acquired by force? Why allow idle sons and daughters to waste this wealth? Why not tax them by graduated income, inheritance, and increment taxes so that they bear a burden according to their strength, in order that the burden of maintaining the state shall not fall so heavily upon the poor? Will this be permitted? Will not some force be terrorized by our legislators?"

Dr. McCarthy had this sort of thing in mind when he said:

"When it comes to the attainment of any reasonable legislation for the betterment of human beings, the only way to beat the Socialists is to beat them to it."

But the connection is not yet complete. Senator Hutton was the originator, according to Dr. McCarthy, of a plan to bypass all commissions with "one of the bills of appropriation, i. e., the contributing appropriation."

Leave Work to McCarthy.

This is the powerful factor that turns such a situation into a self-appointing oligarchy. It ought not, perhaps, to be expected that Dr. McCarthy should desire the cost of such machinery to be too mainly open to the public inspection. With a legislature meeting 10 days and spending a third of its time over the La Follette "Bull Moose" fight, that centered around Ekern, how could it do justice to the 1,800 bills that emanated from Dr. McCarthy's "legislative room" half of them became laws but nobody knows what they are about. But I can give you readers another view of the matter. They may remember that soon after the adjournment of the legislature I gave them a statement showing that the appropriations for the current two years aggregated something over $26,000,000. But this was short of the facts. As nearly as I can arrive at it now, the legislature's maximum expenses for $27,000,000, but I have progressed to the point where I don't believe in Wisconsin official figures, and I don't believe that the man exists who can tell exactly what it costs to run this state or what the state's revenue division under the government, and the tax commission has convinced me, for it practically admits this in one of its reports. One feature of this year's appropriations is that about $7,000,000 was provided for new city buildings, parks, etc. etc. When I called attention to these appropriations, last August, only a few people took it seriously. Now even those most responsible for state extravagance are crowding each other to get to the bar and turn state's evidence.

In view therefore of the fact that it was the budget that gave me my first information of the situation, I have more reason for it than has Dr. McCarthy. But for the budget and Governor McGovern's little "kick," when he signed it, we might all still be beggared as "Jim" Fear beggared us as late as his report of July 1932, when he told us that the state's expenses were less than $5,000,000 a year.

When Lieutenant Governor Morris opened his senatorial campaign with a proposition that we have a constitutional convention to take the state down and clamp the nails on the underside, he had in mind just what Dr. McCarthy and Senator Hutton had in mind when they fixed commissions so they could not be reached by anything short of a political earthquake.

The Erie Railroad Lake Line.

Erie will have a new line from the Manitowish Dry Dock company for the launching of the new steel tug "Alice Stafford," on the 15th, promising an interesting event in the history of the western waterway division of the Erie railroad system, which is that part of it that touches Wisconsin ports and shippers immediately. The "Frederick O. Robbins," which was launched last year at the same ship yard, has been teaching Chicago new things in the handling of freight ever since, and the "Alice Stafford" is going into the same service, so that this year the Erie's terminal service in the Chicago river will be doubled. All these preparations are against the time, but a few weeks away, before midsummer, when the Erie's public tracks to New York will be complete to Chicago. The Erie will then push its campaign for business all over the west, clear to the Pacific coast and into the Canadian northwest.

Short Notes.

In Milwaukee county the towns generally if they took any notice, disapproved of the special session of the legislature.

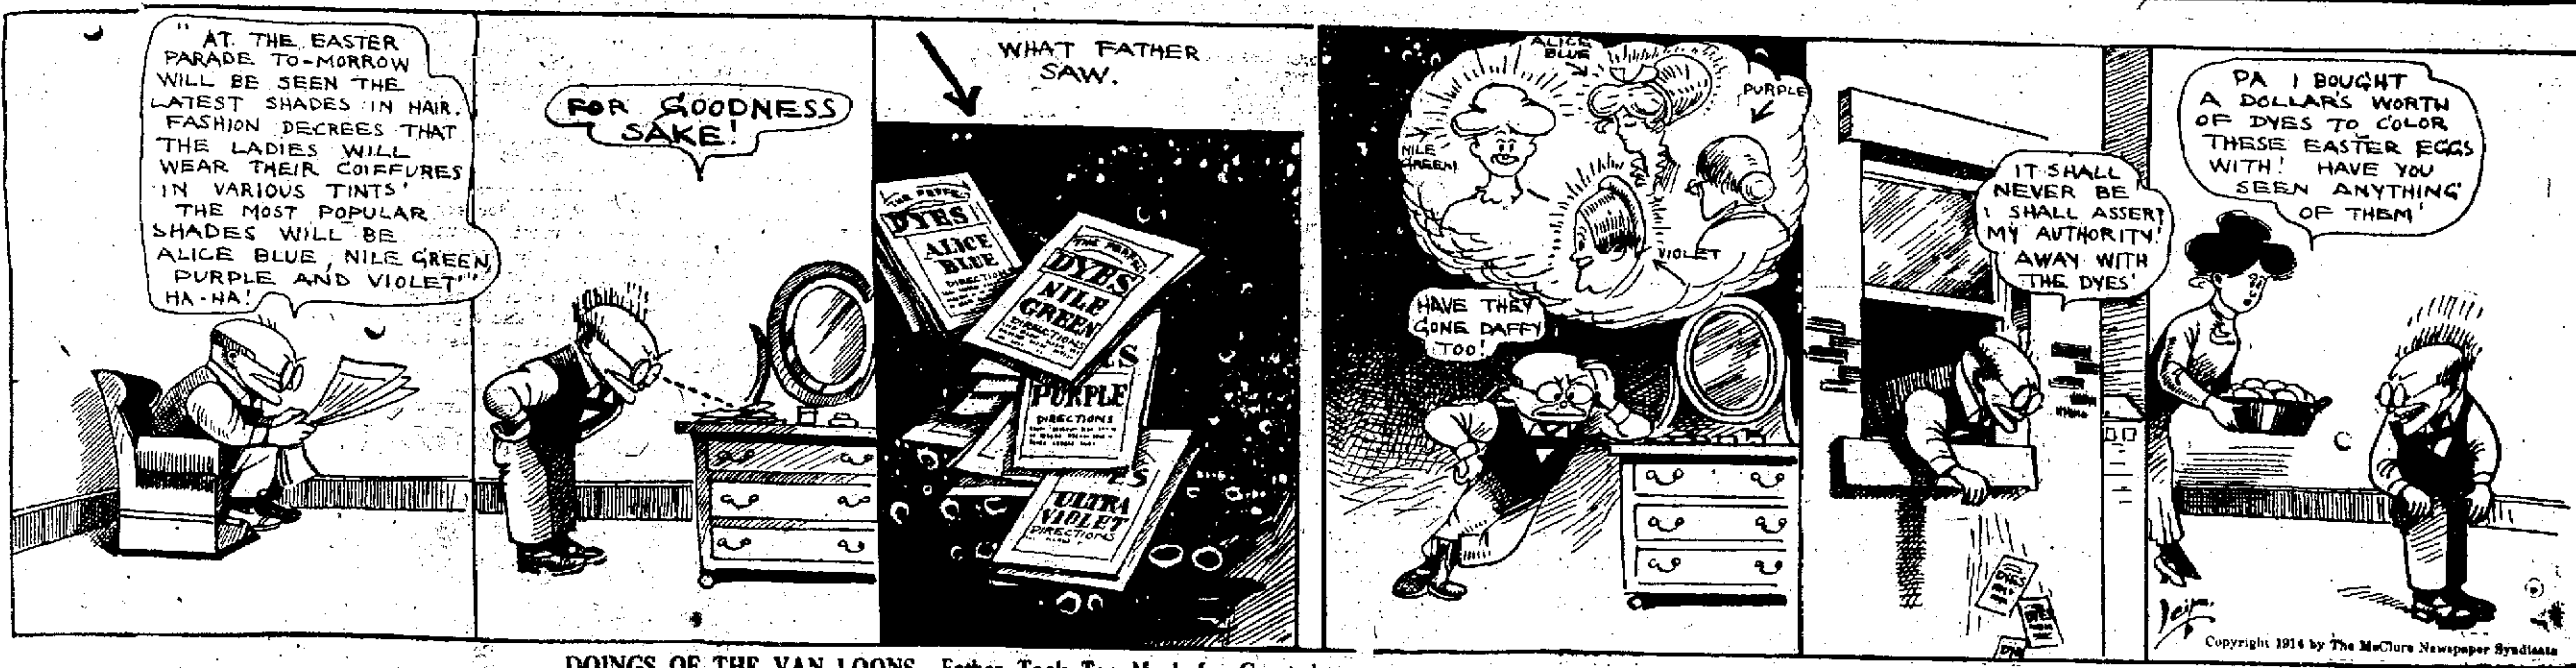

The victory of Thompson for judge in an old La Follette stronghold is an event that tends to prove my theory that McGovern has the machinery all in his hands.

The Wisconsin Academy of Science, Arts and Letters, in conjunction with the Wisconsin Archaeological society, the Wisconsin Natural History society and the Wisconsin Historical society, held a two day session at the trustees' room of the Milwaukee Public Museum on Thursday and Friday. The business was in the main the reading of interesting papers by active members of these various organizations.

There is a report that E. L. Phillip expects to call a Republican conference or convention in June. The more candidates for office the easier the campaign program will work, but General Confusion is the leader in politics just now.

WAS MISERABLE COULDN'T STAND

Testifies She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lackawanna, N. Y.—"After my first child was born I felt very miserable and could not stand on my feet. My sister-in-law wished me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my nerves became firm, appetite good, step elastic, and I lost that weak, tired feeling. That was six years ago and I have had three fine healthy children since. For female troubles I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it works like a charm. I do all my own work."—Mrs. A. F. KRAMER, 1574 Electric Avenue, Lackawanna, N. Y.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should be convinced of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly publishing in the newspapers.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Trinidad's Mangrove Trees.
The mangrove tree, which is found in Trinidad, has many peculiarities. For one thing, its seeds germinate on the branches, and when the shoots are considerably grown they fall off and take root in the mud. As the young tree grows it sends out fresh roots from its trunk and lower branches, until at last the tree seems to be supported by a network of roots, or complicated series of arches, in the midst of which crabs, aquatic birds and insects take up their abode.

WHY SPRING COLDS ARE DANGEROUS

If Neglected They Lead to Serious, Perhaps Fatal Results.

If you get cold at this time of year and try to "let it wear off," it frequently develops into a stubborn lung trouble, which may in turn become chronic asthma, bronchitis or consumption. It is important to remember that Father John's Medicine relieves colds because of its nourishing body-building elements, which give strength to the system and enable each organ to resume its normal functions. Father John's Medicine is not a patent medicine, contains no injurious drugs, but is a pure food medicine, for those who are weak and run-down.

If you have any difficulty in securing Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.

The Valiants of Virginia

He opened it, to close it instantly—not, however, before she had put out her hand and laid it, palm down, on the page. "That rose! Oh, let me have it!"

"Never!" he protested. "Look here. When I put it between the leaves, I did so at random. I didn't see till now that I had opened it at a marked passage."

"Let us read it," she said. He leaned and held the leaf to the light from the doorway and the two heads bent together over the text.

A sound fell behind them and both turned. A slight figure, in a soft gray gown with old lace at the throat, stood in the doorway behind them. John Valiant sprang to his feet.

"Ah, Shirley, I thought I heard voices. Is that you, Chilly?"

"It's not Mr. Lusk, mother," said Shirley. "It's our new neighbor, Mr. Valiant."

As he bent over the frail hand, murmuring the conventional words that presentations are believed to require, Mrs. Dandridge sank into a deep cushioned chair. "Won't you sit down?" she said. He noticed that she did not look directly at him, and that her face was as pallid as his hair.

"Thank you," said John Valiant, and resumed his place on the lower step.

Shirley, who had again seated herself, suddenly laughed, and pointed to the book which lay between them. "Imagine what we are doing, dearest! We were reading 'Lucile' together."

She saw the other twice, and the deep dark eyes lifted, as if under compulsion, from the book-cover to Valiant's face. He was startled by Shirley's cry and the sudden limp unconscious settling-back into the cushions of the fragile form.

CHAPTER XIX.

Night.

A quicker breeze was stirring as John Valiant went back along the Red Road. He had waited in the garden at Rosewood till Shirley, aided by Emmaline and with Ransom's anxious face hovering in the background, having performed those gentle offices which a woman's fainting spell requires, had come to reassure him and to say good night.

As he threw off his coat in the bedroom he had chosen for his own, he felt the hard corner of the "Lucile" in the pocket, and drawing it out, laid it on the table by the bedside. He seemed to feel again the tingle of his coppery hair had sprung against it when her head had bent beside his own to read the marked lines.

When he had undressed he sat an hour in the candle-blaze, a dressing-gown thrown over his shoulders, striving vainly to recreate that evening call, to remember her every word and look and movement. For a breath her face would flush suddenly before him, like a live thing; then it would mysteriously fade and elude him, though he clenched his hands on the arms of his chair in the fierce mental effort to recall it. Only the intense blue of her eyes, the tawny sweep of her hair—these and the touch of her, the consciousness of her warm and vivid fragrance, remained to wrap all his senses in a mist woven of gold and fire.

Shirley, meanwhile, had sat some time beside her mother's bed, leaning from a white chintz-covered chair, her anxiety only partially allayed by reassurances, now and then stooping to lay her young cheek against the delicate arm in its lace sleeve or to pass her hand lovingly up and down its outline, noting with a recurrent passion of tenderness the transparency of the skin with its violet veining and the shadows beneath the closed eyes. Emmaline, moving on foot worsted-shod feet about the dim room, at length had whispered:

Shirley, who had again seated herself, suddenly laughed, and pointed to the Book.

"You go tui bald, honey. I stay with Miss Judith till she go tui sleep."

"Yes, go, Shirley," said her mother. "Haven't I any privileges at all? Can't I even faint when I feel like it, without calling out the fire-brigade? You'll pamper me to death and heaven knows I don't need it."

"You won't let me telephone for Doctor Southall?"

"Certainly not!"

"And you are sure it was nothing but the roses?"

"Why, what else should it be?" said her mother almost peevishly. "I must really have the arbores thinned out. On heavy nights it's positively overpowering. Go along now, and we'll talk about it tomorrow. I can ring if I want anything."

In her room Shirley undressed thoughtfully. There was between her and her mother a fine tenuous bond of sympathy and feeling as rare, perhaps, as it was lovely. She could not remember when the other had not been a semi-invalid, and her earliest childhood recollections were punctuated with the tap of the little cane.

She slipped on a pink shell-shaded dressing-gown of silky silk with a riot of tassels scattered in the weave, and then, dragging her chair before the open window, drew aside the light curtain and began to brush her hair. All at once her gaze fell upon the floor, and she shrank backward from a twisting thread-like thing whose bright saffron-yellow glowed sharply against the dark carpet. She saw in an instant, however, that it was nothing more dangerous than a fragment of love-vine from the garden, which had clung to her skirt. She picked up the tiny mass of tendrils and with a slow smile tossed it over her right shoulder through the window. "If it takes root," she said aloud, "my sweet-heart loves me." She leaned from the sill to peer down into the misty garden, but could not follow its fall.

Long ago her visitor would have reached Damory Court. She had a vision of him wandering, candle in hand, through the empty echoing rooms, looking at the voiceless portraits on the walls, thinking perhaps of his father, of the fatal duel of which he had never known. She liked the way he had spoken of his father!

As she leaned, out of the stillness there came to her ear a mellow sound. It was the bell of the courthouse in the village. She counted the strokes falling clearly or faintly as the sluggish breeze ebbed or swelled. It was eleven.

She drew back, dropped the curtain to shut out the wan glimmer, and in the darkness crept into the soft bed, as if into a hiding-place.

A warm sun and an air mildly mellow. A faint gold-shadowed mist over the valley and a soft lilac haze blending the rounded outlines of the hills. Through the shrubbery, at Damory Court a cardinal darted like a crimson shuttle, to rock impudently from a fleeing limb, and here and there on the bluish-ivory sky, motionless as a pasted wafer, hung a hawk; from time to time one of these waivered and slanted swiftly down, to climb once more in a huge spiral to its high tower of sky.

Perhaps it wondered, as its telescopic eye looked down. That had been its choicest covert, that disheveled tangle where the birds held perpetual carnival, the weasel lurked in the underbrush and the rabbit lined his windfall. Now the wildness was gone. A pergola, glistening white, now upheld the runaway vines, making a sickle-like path from the upper terrace to the lake. In the barn loft the pigeons still quarrelled over their new coats of fresh pine, and under a clump of locust trees at a little distance from the house, a half-dozen dolls' cabins on stilts stood waiting the honey-storage of the black and gold bees.

There were new denizens, also. These had arrived in a dozen zinc tanks and willow hampers, to the amazement of a sleepy express clerk at the railroad station: two swans now sailed majestically over the lily-ponds of the lake, along its gravel rim and a pair of bronze-colored ducks waddled and preened, and its placid surface rippled and broke to the sluggish backs of goldfish and the flitting fins of red Japanese carp.

The house itself wore another air. Its look of unkemptness had largely vanished. The soft gray tone of age remained, but the bleakness and forlornness were gone; there was about all now a warmth and genial bearing that hinted at mellowed beauty, fire-light and cheerful voices within.

Valiant heaved a long sigh of satisfaction as he stood in the sunlight gazing at the results of his labors. He was not now the flippant boulevardier to whom money was the sine qua non of existence. He had learned a sovereign lesson—one gained not through the push and fight of crowds, but in the simple peace of a countryside, unexposed by the clamor of gold, and the complex problems of a competitive existence—that he had inherited a need of activity, of achievement that he had been born to do.

"Chum," he said, to the dog rolling on his back in the grass, "what do you think of it all, anyway?" He reached down, seized a hind leg and whirling him around like a teetotum, sent him flying into the bushes, whence Chum launched again upon him, like a catapult. He caught the white shoulders and held him vice-like. "Just about right, eh? But wait till we get those rambles!"

"And to think," he continued, whimsically releasing him, "that I might have gone on, one of the little-neck-clam crowd I've always trained with, at the same old pace, till the Vermont-cocktail-Palm-Beach career got a double Nelson on me and the umpire counted me out. At this moment I wouldn't swap this old house and land, and the sunshine and that 'garden' and Uncle Jefferson and Aunt Daphne and the chickens and the birds and all the rest of it, for a mile of Millionaires' Row."

He went into the house and to the library. The breeze through the wide-swing bow-window was fluttering the papers on the desk and the map on the wall was flapping sideways. He went to straighten it, and then saw what he had not noticed before—that it covered something that had been let into the plaster. He swung it aside and made an exclamation.

He was looking at a square, uncompromising wall-safe, with a round figured disk of white metal on its face. He knelt before it and tried its knob. After a moment it turned easily. But the resolute steel door would not open, though he tried every combination that came into his mind. "No use," he said disgustedly. "One must have the right numbers."

Then he lifted his fretted frame and smote his grimy hands together. "Confound it!" he said with a short laugh. "Here I am, a bankrupt, with all this outfit—clear to the very finger-bowls—handed to me on a silver tray, and I'm mad as cat because I can't open the first locked thing I find!"

He ran upstairs and donned a rough corduroy jacket and high leather leggings. "We're going to climb the hill

today," Chum, he announced, "and no more moccasins need apply."

In the lower hall, however, he suddenly stopped stock-still. "The slip of paper that was in the china dog!" he exclaimed. "What a chump I am not to have thought of it!" He found it in its pigeonhole and, kneeling down before the safe, tried the numbers carefully, first right, then left: 17-28-94-0. The heavy door opened.

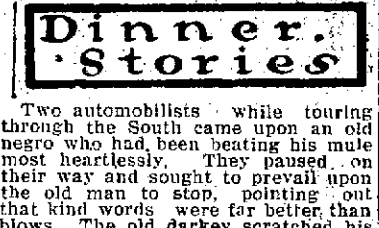

"I was right!" he exulted. "It's the plate." He drew it out, piece by piece. Each was bagged in dark-red Canton flannel. He broke the tape of one bag and exposed a great silver pitcher, tarnished purple-blue like a raven's wing—then a tea-service. Each piece, large and small, was marked with the grayhound rampant and the motto: "And to think," he said, "that my great-great-grandfather buried you with his own hands under the stables when Tarleton's raiders swept the valley before the surrender at Yorktown! Only wait till Aunt Daphne gets you polished up, and on the sideboard! You're the one thing the place has needed!"

With the dog for comrade he traversed the garden and plunged across the valley below, humming as he went. The place was pathless and overgrown with paw-paw bushes and sassafras. Great trees stood so thickly in places as to make a twilight and the sunnier spots were masses of pink laurel, poison-ivy, flaming purple rhododendron and wine-red tendrils of interbraided briars. This was the forest land of whose possibilities he had thought. In the heart of the woods he came upon a great limb that had been wrenched off by storm. The broken wood was of a deep rich brown, shading to black. He broke off his song, snapped a twig and smelled it. Its sharp acrid odor was unmistakable. He suddenly remembered the walnut tree at Rosewood and what Shirley had said: "I know a girl who had two in her yard, and she went to Europe on them."

Dinner Stories
Two automobilists while touring through the South came upon an old negro who had been beating his mule most heartlessly. They halted on their way and sought to prevail upon the old man to stop, pointing out that kind words were far better than blows. The old darkey scratched his head and for a moment was at a loss. However, he soon perked up and had an explanation. "Dis yeah mule," he said, "won't never respond to no coaxing nor wheedling boss; he's deaf as a cotton bale in bot' ears and the only way Ah find Ah kin talk to him is wif the sign language."

of the wedding were indulging in those solemn self-confessions which such an occasion invites. "One thing Ah most forgot to tell yuh honey," cooed Eliza. "It's a somnambulism! word liked it, carefully remembered it and at last had an opportunity to bring it into use. 'Don' worry 'bout that,' replied Sam, 'with easy, chivv, airous air, ma fathah wuz Meofodis, ma muttiah wuz Baptil, an' Ah'm—well, fur's Ah'm conceined Ah'd jes' soon go to youah ch'uch as any otherh."

Be Cheerful.
"Be cheerful when you eat," said a doctor recently to an interviewer, "and you will be able to enjoy anything." The man who tackles a railway sandwich ought to approach it screaming with laughter.

85,000 Wisconsin Homes Are Open To Your Message Today.

Wisconsin Daily League, 19 Daily Newspapers published in the best cities in the state, carry your announcement to nearly 500,000 Wisconsin people at a very low cost.

How much would it cost you to circularize 85,000 homes?

Several hundred dollars at least. If you used two cent postage $1700 for stamps alone, without considering the cost of printing stationery, etc., which would amount to several hundred more.

Yet—it is possible to send your message not only once but a number of times to 85,000 homes at a cost of ranging from $16.48 to $376.20.

This can be accomplished through the 19 Daily Newspapers of the Wisconsin Daily League

—by inserting your advertisement in the columns of the 19 newspapers.

Every day many people are using this easy, quick, economical way of talking to these 85,000 homes; this half million people.

Can you in any other way reach such a tremendous audience at such a nominal cost?

Let us illustrate. A 36-word classified advertisement for 3 days in the Wisconsin Daily League, 19 newspapers, costs you $16.48. A 3-inch display advertisement inserted 33 times in these 19 newspapers will cost you $11.40 each insertion, a total of $376.20.

These papers will cooperate with you, furnish much information about the nineteen best cities in the state in which they are published.
